

SATURDAY 26 SEPTEMBER 2026

Architects explore how to make Kochi's everyday spaces more playful for children

Took part 21
Where aikyam space, Fort Kochi

Facilitators 4

Input

Materials Charts, Colour pencils, Water Colours, Books.
Outside help Supported by WRI India through the Nurturing Neighbourhoods 2.0 programme.
Time 4 hours

Activity

Children's need for places to play was the focus of the first Little Big Everywhere workshop at aikyam space. Architects explored how small changes to everyday places in Kochi could make them more welcoming and playful for children. Led by Little Big Festival and supported by WRI India through the Nurturing Neighbourhoods 2.0 programme, the pilot will begin by identifying five spaces that could benefit from these changes.

Discussion

Learnings

Making space for children's play can begin with small changes to places that already exist in the city.

The text of this report is licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License (CC BY 4.0). To view a copy of the license, visit <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/>. Photographs: all rights reserved.